How to feng shui your room!

First, clear away any unnecessary objects. This includes junk inside chests of drawers, cupboards and under your bed. Also empty your wastepaper bin. You'll feel better when your room is clean and tidy.

Next, look at your bed. Check that you can see the door easily from your bed. Mirrors are not a good idea in the bedroom, and if you have an armchair in the room, put it next to the wall.

Now look at your desk. If you have a bookcase behind it, people will talk behind your back. Also, if you sit in front of a window, you won't find it easy to concentrate. Curtains and blinds should be of natural material.

Lamps are important too. You'll have better results at school if you put one in the north-east corner of your room. Don't have plants in a room – they use up your energy.

Finally, always have music playing in your room when you go out. That way, the energy in your room will remain active until you get back. And if you have a glass of water on your bedside table at night, you'll sleep better.
